2021 Conference Overview

Canadian Waterpower Week is the industry's premier national annual event.

Hosted by WaterPower Canada, the Canadian Waterpower Week is the premier annual event for the national hydropower industry that addresses key issues and opportunities facing the sector.

Building Toward Net Zero

Hydropower is Canada's largest source of renewable energy, representing more than 60 percent of our total annual electricity production. In the lead up to the United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP26), the global urgency and ambition for greenhouse gas emissions goals is increasing. The question being asked at Canadian Waterpower Week 2021, is: how will hydropower's role evolve in our clean-energy mix to reach net-zero emissions? The 2021 Conference will explore how Canada's hydropower industry can best navigate economic, environmental, and social issues and opportunities to maximize the role it plays in North America.

At Least 3 Reasons to Sponsor

- 1. Demonstrate your leadership and raise your profile at the industry's premier national event.
- 2. Elevate the importance of hydropower in Canada through speaking, moderating, discussion, and project spotlight opportunities.
- 3. Support your association as the national voice of hydropower in Canada during this pivotal year as we work toward net-zero goals.

Attendee Profile

- In 2020, more than 350 key industry stakeholders attended, representing every Canadian province, multiple U.S. states, and 5 countries.
- Diverse attendee profile:
 - Decision makers from hydropower generators (40%),
 - Senior executives and experts from supply chain (35%), and
 - Key industry stakeholders (25%, including government, academia, and think tanks).
